Unit Overview

In this unit, students continue to develop habits and skills related to close reading, annotation, using evidence, building vocabulary, and participating in structured discussion, and they do so with text that is more qualitatively complex than in earlier units. This may be students' first exposure to Shakespeare and the format of a play, and so instruction includes a focus on Shakespeare's use of language and on the organization of the play. Students will study the structure of his language and speeches for craft and impact on character development.

Students alternate reading and viewing Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, continuing their study of how authors develop complex characters. They follow the development of Romeo and Juliet from the time each character is introduced, collecting evidence on how the two characters develop across all five acts of the play as revealed by Shakespeare's language and their interactions with other characters. Throughout the reading and viewing of the play, students examine Shakespeare's rich use of figurative language, word play, and powerful cadence.

Although this unit serves as an introduction to Shakespeare, it does not delve into the world and works of Shakespeare. Students study both the written text and Baz Luhrmann's 1996 film version of the play. Key scenes are read and analyzed closely, according to their pivotal role in the play and their historic and cultural relevance in the wider range of reading. Luhrmann's film addresses the text between the selected excerpts to allow students to contextualize their close readings. Some parts of the play will be viewed without reading the script, and others will be read closely without viewing.

This is the first lesson in Unit 3. As noted in the introduction, AIR provides scaffolding differentiated for ELL students at the entering (EN), emerging (EM), transitioning (TR), and expanding (EX) levels of English language proficiency in this prototype. We indicate the level(s) for which the scaffolds are appropriate in brackets following the scaffold recommendations (e.g., [EN]). Where [ALL] is indicated, it means that the scaffold is intended for all levels of students. Scaffolds are gradually reduced as student become more proficient in English.

The following table displays the Public Consulting Group lesson components as well as the additional supports and new activities AIR has provided to scaffold instruction for ELLs/MLLs.

TextPrologue from Romeo and Juliet

Two households, both alike in dignity,
In fair Verona, where we lay our scene,
From ancient grudge break to new mutiny,
Where civil blood makes civil hands unclean.
From forth the fatal loins of these two foes
A pair of star-cross'd lovers take their life;
Whose misadventured piteous overthrows
Do with their death bury their parents' strife.
The fearful passage of their death-mark'd love,
And the continuance of their parents' rage,
Which, but their children's end, nought could remove,
Is now the two hours' traffic of our stage;
The which if you with patient ears attend,
That here shall miss, our toil shall strive to mend.

1. Introduction of Lesson Agenda

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions. The stated purpose of the unit is for students to “continue to develop habits and skills related to close reading, annotation, using evidence, building vocabulary, and participating in structured discussion, and they do so with text that is more qualitatively complex than in earlier units.”

AIR Additional Supports

Put the standards into student-friendly objectives to ensure ELLs/MLLs understand the standards.

Instructions for Teachers

Post the standards, post student-friendly versions of the standards, read the standards and objectives aloud, give students the opportunity to work in pairs to discuss what the objectives mean, and have a pair who has figured out the meaning of the standards share with the class

Instructions for Students

In this lesson, you will learn to explore what words and phrases mean in Romeo and Juliet and have more experience with close reading. Read the

2. Homework Accountability

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

The teacher instructs the students to talk in pairs about how they can apply their focus standard to their text. The teacher leads a brief sharing on the previous lesson's AIR homework assignment. Several students (or student pairs) explain how they applied their focus standard to their text.

AIR Additional Supports

Give students support to help them share out the previous lesson's AIR homework assignment. Display each of the three possible focus standards and provide sentence frames to support ELLs/MLLs at the entering, emerging, and transitioning levels in discussing how they applied their focus standard to their text. It is a good idea to have students, who did this work well, share with the class as a model for how they applied their focus standards to the text. Use sentence frames to support them. We have modeled sentence frames for the first standard from the previous lesson.

Instructions for Teachers

Display the first focus standard: Cite strong and thorough textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly, as well as inferences drawn from the text.

Provide students with the following sentence frames to support them as they discuss how they applied the first possible focus standard to their AIR text. Students at the Expanding level of proficiency do not require frames.

Instructions for Students

Complete the following sentences.

The title of the text I read was _____ . [EN, EM, TR]

One idea from my text that was stated or written (or explicit) in the text was _____ . [EN, EM, TR]

Details in the text about this idea are _____ . [EN, EM, TR]

One idea from my text that was not stated or written (explicit) in the text was _____ . [EN, EM, TR]

Details in the text about this idea are _____ . [EN, EM, TR]

3. Opening Activity

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

Write the words progress, prototype, proactive, and prologue on the board. Provide the following questions for students. They should record their responses. What do these words have in common? What does this similarity reveal about the meaning of these words? Ask students for observations about how this understanding can help them to infer the meaning of prologue.

AIR Additional Supports

Teaching ELLs at all proficiency levels about affixes and roots, providing meanings for the prefix pro and for the roots and asking them to use this information to determine the meanings of the words in the previous paragraph. Explain to students that when you put a prefix and a root together, you get a sense of the meaning of the word, but you may not get the exact meaning of the word. For example, the prefix pro means forward and the root -gress means step or walk. Putting the prefix and root together we get forward walking. The actual meaning of the word, however, is forward movement toward completing something such as a project or task.

AIR Instructions for Teachers

- Ask students what each word has in common. (pro)
- Define the prefix and explain that pro is a prefix that means forward.
- Ask students to separate the prefix from the rest of the word.
- Tell students the part of the word that remains is called the root.
- Define roots (the base word that contains the most significant clue to the meaning of the word) and provide them with the meaning of the roots for the words with pro.
- Tell them that knowing the prefix and the root will help them figure out word meaning.
- Tell them to use their knowledge of the meanings of the prefix and roots to figure out the meanings for progress, proactive, and prologue (prototype has the prefix proto, which means first, not before). Provide the following sentence frames for students at the entering, emerging, and transitioning levels:

Example:

The root -gress means step or walk.

The prefix pro means forward.

Example sentence: Are you making progress on your homework assignment?

Putting the prefix and root together I get forward walking. So in the example sentence the word “progress” might mean moving forward with something or getting something completed.

AIR Instructions for Students

Complete the following sentences.

Example sentence: Before we started reading scene 1 of Romeo and Juliet, we read the prologue.

The root -logue means speak.

What does the prefix pro mean? [ALL].

The prefix pro means _____. [EN, EM, TR]

What do you get when you put the prefix and root together? [ALL]

Putting the prefix and root together, I get _____. [EN, EM, TR]

What might prologue mean in the example sentence? [ALL]

In the example sentence the word prologue might mean _____.
[EN, EM, TR]

Example sentence: Sometimes schools are proactive in responding to bad weather, and they cancel school before it even starts to snow.

The root act means move, go, or do.

What does the prefix pro mean? [ALL]

The prefix pro means _____. [EN, EM, TR]

What do you get when you put the prefix and root together? [ALL]

Putting the prefix and root together, I get _____. [EN, EM, TR]

What might proactive mean in the example sentence? [ALL]

So in the example sentence the word proactive might mean _____.
[EN, EM, TR]

4. Masterful Reading and Prologue Handout

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

The teacher distributes a copy of the prologue to each student.

The teacher tells students that they will listen to a masterful reading of the prologue before they begin reading it on their own. The teacher reads or plays an audio version of the prologue in its entirety while students follow along silently.

Enhancing Background Knowledge (AIR New Activity 1 for Masterful Reading and Prologue Handout)

AIR Additional Supports

There are four pieces of background information that will help students with the text: (1) the text translated into Spanish for Spanish-speaking ELLs/MLLs at the EN, EM, and TR levels, (2) a historical context including a very brief biography of Shakespeare and an introduction to Romeo and Juliet, (3) the concept of a prologue and 4) the concept of language changing over time.

AIR Instructions for Teachers

Support ELLs/MLLs by providing them with text in their home language and having them read about Shakespeare, the play Romeo and Juliet, the meaning of ‘prologue’, and changes in English and answering questions about these texts.

AIR Instructions for Students: Spanish Translation

Read the text in your home language before reading it in English to help you understand it.

Spanish Translation of the Text

Dos ilustres familias, iguales en nobleza, en la hermosa Verona, lugar de nuestra historia, de rencoros antiguos crean nuevas querellas en que la sangre mancha las manos ciudadanas. De los troncos funestos de estos dos enemigos nacieron con mal signo los amantes fatales cuyas desventuras, que dieron con la muerte, ponen fin a la vieja discordia de sus padres. El tránsito terrible de su amor desdichado y la ira enconada de sus progenitores que sólo apagaría la muerte de los hijos, es la escena que ahora se pone ante vosotros. Si quieres escuchar con oído paciente, en menos de dos horas tratará nuestro esfuerzo de suplir lo que en ella puede que no encontrareis.

William Shakespeare, Romeo y Julieta (Santiago, Chile: Editorial Universitaria, 1974.).

Text: Word Meanings Changing Over Time	Glossary
The way that some words are used today is very different from how they were used in the past. The reason for this change is that words have many meanings and connotations and over time people begin to use one meaning or connotation more often, and the other meanings stop being used. For example, in the Romeo and Juliet prologue that you will read the word dignity to describe the position of people in society or their status. In Shakespeare’s time, a prince would have high status. A coachman, or the man who managed the horses, would have a much lower status. However, the common definition of dignity today is a feeling of self-worth or value. A student who said, “I worked very hard on the quick write and think I did a	connotation—a secondary meaning of a word or expression society—all members of a community or group status—a person’s position in comparison to other people

Building Vocabulary (AIR New Activity 2 for Masterful Reading and Prologue Handout)

AIR Additional Supports

Students are provided a glossary that contains the meaning of the key words. If a meaning is archaic or unusual, ELLs/MLLs also are provided with the more common meaning. Students complete a glossary of their own, which will include a translation of the word and a picture or phrase to help them remember the meaning.

AIR Instructions for Teachers

Read the prologue aloud with proper pacing and intonation. As you encounter target vocabulary words or phrases that are difficult use the glossary to define them. For example, after reading the phrase “Two households, both alike in dignity,” the teacher might say “Two households both alike in dignity. Alike means the same. Dignity means belonging to group of people with a high position in society. A person with a high position in society in England during the time of Shakespeare might be a prince or princess. So two households alike in dignity means that two homes where people have the same position in society.” This process will help ELLs/MLLs get used to substituting glossed definitions for challenging words that appear in the text.

Also use ESOL techniques such as gestures and pointing to pictures to clarify word meanings. It is important that students have versions of the text with glossed words underlined.

During partner reading (see Scaffolded Close Reading that follows) for each underlined word in the text, students find the word in their glossary and rewrite it. An example of a student glossary follows the glossary of words and phrases.

Later, for homework, students can complete the glossary—drawing a picture or writing a word or phrase to help them remember the new word. Students who are Spanish speakers or speakers of another language that shares cognates with English indicate whether the word is a cognate.

AIR Instructions for Students

Your teacher will read the passage aloud to you (or have you read it with a partner) and explain words that might be confusing. As you read closely in the next section, you will notice that there are some words that are underlined. These words appear in your glossaries. They have definitions alongside the text. If there are two definitions, the first definition is the one used in the text. The other definition is another meaning of the word that is more common. When you come to a glossed word in the text, find it in your glossary, review the definition, and rewrite the word. If your home language shares cognates with English, indicate whether the word is a cognate.

Glossary (Sample)

Word/ Translation	Meaning in Text (meaning of word during Shakespeare's time)	Common Definition Today	Example From Text	Rewrite the Word	Cognate?
households menaje; familia	family	A group of people, such as a family, that lives together in one place	two households both alike in dignity		no

5. Text-Dependent Questions and ActivitiesPublic Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

Have students form small, heterogeneous groups of four for the purpose of discussing the text in more depth and recording insights. During discussions, allow time for each group to share their collaborative work with the class. Instruct groups to read the first four lines aloud, focusing this reading with the following instruction: Find and circle repeating words in lines 1–4. Once students have finished reading, ask them to share the repetitions that they identified.

AIR Additional Supports

- First, have ELLs/MLLs engage in scaffolded close reading for key ideas and details (see AIR new activity that follows) prior to engaging in this activity.

- Create groups to include various reading levels and abilities; have a description available for students to refer to on the role and duties of each group member, for example, what is expected of the facilitator, reader, recorder; and provide the students with the questions in writing.

Public Consulting Teacher and Student Actions

Direct students to the first use of the word civil in the prologue: “where civil blood makes civil hands unclean” (1.Prol.4).

Used as an adjective these days, civil is generally defined as “polite.” Replace the first appearance of the word civil in line 4 with the word polite. How does this substitution change your understanding of the sentence?

Civil can also be defined as something that relates to ordinary citizens (e.g., civilians). Replace the first appearance of civil with the word civilian. How does this substitution change your understanding of this sentence?

Whose hands are being made “unclean”? What words and phrases can you find in lines 1–3 to support your understanding of this second use of civil in line 4?

Now consider both uses of the word civil. Ask: What are two different ways you can mix and match the definitions in line 4? Paraphrase the meaning of each sentence you generate. Which meaning supports the claim you made in your answer to question 4?

Why do you think Shakespeare uses civil in two different ways in the same sentence?

Then lead a brief class discussion of each question.

AIR Additional Supports

ELLs will be better able to participate in this activity because they have done a first read for key ideas and details. Experts on Shakespeare have defined the phrase with the word civil to mean “Where citizens’ hands are stained with the blood of fellow citizens.” Therefore, it is not necessary to emphasize the meaning of civil as being polite. It is important, however, to help students understand what is making the citizens’ hands unclean. Have students read aloud these two lines:

- From ancient grudge break to new mutiny,
- Where civil blood makes civil hands unclean.

Ask students to refer to their glossary for the meaning of unclean. Say to students “one way hands are unclean is they are covered with soil or dirt.” Ask students to find the meaning of the word mutiny in their glossaries. Say to students “If mutiny means to fight, and the hands are made unclean or dirty by the fighting, what substance do you think covers the hands?”

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

Direct student groups to reread lines 1–4.

- Two households, both alike in dignity,
- In fair Verona, where we lay our scene,
- From ancient grudge break to new mutiny,

- Where civil blood makes civil hands unclean.

Now that students have a better understanding of the word civil, pose the following question:
What is at stake in this ancient fight=

AIR Additional Supports

Tell ELLs to refer to their glossary for the definitions of words and phrases they may not know, such as ancient grudge. Scaffold the questions in the anchor lesson by rephrasing them so students have a better idea of what the question calls for:

Who is fighting?

What will happen because they are fighting?

Instruct student groups to read lines 5–8. Provide the following question for groups to answer. Instruct students to take note of their observations in their groups and be prepared to share in a class discussion.

What happens to the lovers?

What adjective in line 5 supports your answer?

Have students read aloud these two lines: From forth the fatal loins of these two foes, A pair of star-cross'd lovers take their life. Ask students to return to supplementary question 10 and explain what happens to the lovers. Ask students to identify which of the words in the first line gives a clue as to what will happen to the lovers.

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

Now lead student groups through a dissection of lines 7 and 8:

- Whose misadventured piteous overthrows
- Do with their death bury their parents' strife.

Look at the word misadventured in line 7. What familiar word can you find in misadventured? What does this word mean? How does the prefix mis- change your definition?

AIR Additional Supports

Explain to students that the prefix mis means wrong or not and the root adventure means an activity that is dangerous or exciting. Remind students that when you put a prefix and a root together you get a sense of the meaning of the word, but you may not get the exact meaning of the word.

Ask students to put the prefix and root together to come up with the meaning of misadventured. Have students look up the word in their glossary and then talk with a partner about how the meaning that they came up with is like the meaning used in the text.

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

What familiar word do you hear in piteous? How can this familiar word help you to understand what piteous means in this context?

AIR Additional Supports

For the word piteous have students look at their glossary definition to find a similar word and its meaning.

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

What tone or mood does Shakespeare create in this passage through these two words (piteous, misadventured)?

AIR Additional Supports

Refer students to the background activity at the beginning of the lesson. Ask student to name some feelings or attitudes a text might have. From their understanding of the words misadventured and piteous, ask what they think the tone of this piece of writing is.

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

What does the death of the “star-cross’d” lovers accomplish?

AIR Additional Supports

Ask students to read aloud: Do with their death bury their parents’ strife. Refer students to supplementary question number 12 in the additional activity below to be able to answer the question.

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

PCG: How can you use lines 9–11 to support and strengthen the claim you made about what the death of the star-crossed lovers accomplishes?

- The fearful passage of their death-mark’d love,
- And the continuance of their parents’ rage,
- Which, but their children’s end, nought could remove.

AIR Additional Supports

Have the students read the lines aloud. Ask the students to explain the meaning of “continuance of their parent’s rage.” Ask students to explain the meaning of “their children’s end.” Have the students look up nought and remove in the glossary. Ask students what the children’s end or death removes or gets rid of.

Public Consulting Group Teacher and Student Actions

Have students read and annotate lines 12–14 and answer the following questions in groups:

Who is “our” in line 12? Who is “you” in line 13?

What does the CHORUS ask you to do in the final three lines?

- Is now the two hours’ traffic of our stage;
- The which if you with patient ears attend,

Guiding Question

What are the main events described in the prologue?

Prologue

Two households, both alike in dignity,
 In fair Verona, where we lay our scene,
 From ancient grudge break to new mutiny,
 Where civil blood makes civil hands unclean.
 From forth the fatal loins of these two foes
 A pair of star-cross'd lovers take their life;
 Whose misadventured piteous overthrows
 Do with their death bury their parents' strife.
 The fearful passage of their death-mark'd love,
 And the continuance of their parents' rage,
 Which, but their children's end, nought could remove,
 Is now the two hours' traffic of our stage;
 The which if you with patient ears attend,
 That here shall miss, our toil shall strive to mend.
