East Harlem Scholars Academies Board of Trustees Meeting
November 26, 2019
Meeting Minutes

Trustees Attending In-Person: Iris Chen, Brian Gavin, Lili Lynton, Carlos Morales, Marilyn Simons, Joan Solotar, David Wildermuth

Trustees Attending via Video: Saskia Levy Thompson

Staff Attending: Brandon Clark, Avi Crawford, Jeff Ginsburg, Susan Gonzowitz, Efrain Guerrero, Karen Harris

I. Welcome

Joan Solotar called the meeting to order and welcomed everyone to the meeting. A quorum of directors was present, and the meeting having been duly convened was ready to proceed.

II. Finance Update

Karen began by providing an update on the clean audits from FY19. There were no management recommendations and we have met all of the covenants for the new market transaction and Goldman loans.

All of the schools are currently on budget except for Scholars Elementary where half of the grades do not receive a rent credit. Across the board, we are doing much better than anticipated on salaries and benefits.

The schools seems to be becoming self-sustaining. If you look at the revenues per student, we are receiving $24,000 per student and the cost per student we are incurring is $23,600. This is the first time in the history of the school we have been able to have a surplus instead of a deficit.

Brian Gavin called for a motion to approve the FY19 Scholars Academies Financials. Joan seconded the motion and the motion passed unanimously.

III. Consent Agenda

Iris Chen called for a motion to approve the consent agenda noting all of the items it contained. Lili Lynton seconded the motion and the motion passed unanimously.

IV. Scholars Education & Accountability Update

Saskia Levy Thompson began the Education & Accountability committee update by summarizing the committee's call the week prior. The call focused on all of the amazing work Dr. Rob Harvey & Sarah Caney have done to strengthen our underlying philosophies and push forward the issues of our network. All of the moves Rob will explain keep us on brand with Scholars and EHTP and we are excited to see where the team takes us.

Rob began his presentation with current enrollment numbers. Scholars Elementary II is only 10 students away from their target enrollment number. The High School has met and exceeded their enrollment goal. This has been one of the lowest years for withdraws as we have created a strong family culture and engagement strategy from principals and staff. Our waitlist is continuously strong and we are backfilling until Dec 2.

About 68% of our students are coming from East Harlem, with the second largest group coming from the Bronx. We are going to dive into that data aggressively in the next few months. For our Bronx students, we want to figure out did our students start with us & then move north or is something else occurring? You will hear about our neighborhood research in the next few months.

There will be more information in January about our expansion of the Teaching Residency into the schools. We are going to double our teaching residency and add a cohort of 16 that will receive a SpEd certification. A large portion of our teachers are not SpEd certified, so they do not have the content knowledge to tackle our students with high IEP needs. We are essentially developing an internal pipeline to serve our need for highly effective SpEd teachers. The new model will also be a cost saver. Currently in K-5, one classroom can cost us $190-200k in salaries and benefits. Our newly proposed model of one lead teacher & one teaching resident will save us $396-400k a year. In January, we will walk through the models in more detail. The Education & Accountability committee gave some great warm & cool feedback that we will sit with as we create the final plans and begin recruiting.

Student and staff culture across the network has improved drastically. At Scholars II, we see that everything is on track or coaching. Scholars Middle School is currently our biggest place of concern. We have stopped all programing outside of instructional time to dive into resetting that culture. We are trying to balance the behavior between being out of class and achievement in class.

With the High School, we did our first GPA analysis. What we are seeing is a bell curve, but being an anti-racist organization we do not want to see this strong of a bell cure. We need to do grade norming and work with the teachers to balance high levels of rigor and compassion for students.

We have collaborated with ANet, one of the strongest, nationally normed interim assessments. We were using Edvista before and told them what we wanted to assess. ANet tells us what we should be teaching and telling us the benchmark. For the first time we have nationally normed and rigorous data to compare ourselves to.

V. Public Comment

There was no public comment.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:13PM.

East Harlem Scholars Academies Board of Trustees Meeting
September 24, 2019
Meeting Minutes

Trustees Attending In-Person: Iris Chen, Brian Gavin, Hope Knight, Lili Lynton, Carlos Morales, Joan Solotar, Saskia Levy Thompson, David Wildermuth

Staff Attending: Avi Crawford, Jeff Ginsburg, Efrain Guerrero, Karen Harris, Robert S. Harvey, Nyasha Manigault

I. Welcome

Joan Solotar called the meeting to order and welcomed everyone to the meeting. A quorum of directors was present, and the meeting having been duly convened was ready to proceed.

II. Consent Agenda

At 8:20am, Iris Chen called for a motion to approve the consent agenda noting all of the items it contained. Joan Solotar and Saskia Levy Thompson seconded the motion and the motion passed unanimously.

III. Governance Update

Efrain explained to the board the need to update the Scholars by-laws to match the Scholars Financial Policies & Procedures that was approved in June. The two changes include: the permission by those outlined in the Financial Policies & Procedures to sign checks on behalf of Scholars Academies, and an increase in the dollar amount of checks requiring two signatures from $5,000 to $10,000. Joan motioned for the board to approve the update to the Scholars board by-laws. Brian Gavin seconded the motion and it passed unanimously.

IV. Scholars Education & Accountability Update

Saskia Levy Thompson introduced Robert S. Harvey and the Scholars team by thanking them for not only sharing data, but really sharing the stories behind the data and making it real for everyone. She also encouraged all Trustees to remember that tests are not an absolute measure of our failure or success.

Rob began his update with an update on enrollment. Across the network, enrollment gets better everyday. All schools are within 3 to 5 students of their target enrollment numbers. On average, our current student make up consists of 68% from East Harlem, 2% from the rest of Harlem, 20% from the Bronx and 10% from other parts of Manhattan. This is an interesting topic we can come back to in further months.

Rob continued his presentation with more information on the Principals and how they work together. Principals who have the same grades have begun having meetings together to really lean on each other for moving forward. We are working with principals to help them align objectives, activities and assessments. 50% of Rob's time has been co-teaching with Mo and Des. They are pushing into each classroom twice a week checking to see these alignments in planning. 25% of Rob's time is being spent revising the guided reading approach. Our original approach was over scaffolded and we have to return to simplicity. Another 25% of Rob's time is being spent making connections between content and the real world. We must get to a stronger why for students besides "you need to learn this" or "it will help you in the future."

We spent a long time in August during Build Days with teachers focusing on how to tier lesson plans. Our revised lesson plan template is a lot longer, but it is much simpler than the old model. Lili Lynton asked how teachers are responding to the change. Rob replied that 10% of teachers were thrilled, while the others felt like it was more work than they signed up for. Our 3-4 year veteran teachers were using practices that were not effective for students. They have been videoed twice a week and we are unpacking that during the Friday Professional Development sessions. This has shown teachers the need for the improved lesson plans. Iris asked about the lack of content knowledge for teachers. Rob replied that we have departmentalized 3rd and 4th grade, so teachers can own their content subject and do extremely well in that area.

A lot of the work we are doing with the elementary schools we are doing with middle schools. A big change is that we were not using a pre-written curriculum at SMid. Our teachers were not the strongest curriculum writers and we needed a standard to be used. At SMid II, the new principal, Rhonda, is a content and execution master. Her biggest work area is inviting students in emotionally and SEL work. We are in hallways more at SMid II as culture continues to be a pain point.

For all of our principals, we are trying to balance our anti-racism work with rigorous instruction. Being anti-racist does not mean a lower lift for scholars. The way to see this in the classroom is usually lowering the bar academically, but we are pushing principals to see that setting high bars is still anti-racist. We are starting to see that needle move and embrace the new model. It is fundamentally anti-racist to do this level of planning for the child you are taking charge of.

V. Fund Development & External Affairs Update

Jeff began the Fund Development update by explaining that we had our first major shortfall in revenue during his tenure and it got worst at the end. In closing FY19, we had $1M less than we thought we would. This was due to changed in both expenses and revenues from FY18. With recommendations for our consultant CCs, we have made a shift to focus on individual giving, including ramping up the development team. This year we need to keep up with the individual dinners and meetings that that the board can support on.

While we did cut some staff, we also didn't fill open positions which has been hard on Rob as a fairly new leader. Jeff mentioned that we had our first layoffs since he first began. While considering these changes we focused on impacting teaching and learning the least. We have decided to cut the senior team role of COO.

VI. Finance Update

Karen began her update by providing an update on FY19. While we ended FY19 with a $1M deficit, the schools are on the way to being self sustaining and operate completely on public funds. This was the first year since Karen has worked at EHTP that we did not have to put capital campaign dollars into Scholars.

In response to our final revenues from FY19, we decided the development targets were a bit too high for FY20. In order to keep our budget projection equal to what was presented in June, we have also decreased about $800,000 in expenses. Those cuts came from both non-staffing and staffing changes at EHTP & Scholars.

In our revised budget for FY20, we are expecting a surplus at Scholars. Our expected overall FY20 projected deficit of $122k is better than the $180k we projected at the June board meeting.

Meeting Minutes

Trustees Attending In-Person: Hope Knight, Carlos Morales, Marilyn Simons

Trustees Attending via Video: Iris Chen, Lili Lynton

Staff Attending: Sarah Caney, Avi Crawford, Jeff Ginsburg, Efrain Guerrero, Karen Harris, Robert S. Harvey, Nyasha Manigault, Tammy Myers

I. Welcome

Jeff Ginsburg called the meeting to order and welcomed everyone to the meeting. A quorum of directors was present, and the meeting having been duly convened was ready to proceed.

II. Consent Agenda

At 8:30am, Iris Chen called for a motion to approve the consent agenda noting all of the items it contained. Hope Knight and Marilyn Simon seconded the motion and the motion passed unanimously.

III. Finance Update

Karen began her update by providing an overview of Scholars revenue over the years and how things would look if we never added funding from the first capital campaign. With that addition, Scholars is now well on its way to becoming self-sufficient. We will have $4.5 mil in our operating reserve by the end of 2021.

The audits have gone well and final financials will be released by the next board meeting. The BTQ implementation is going well, but is very time consuming and lots of hard work for the finance team right now.

IV. Scholars Education & Accountability Update

Rob Harvey began his update by thanking the board for coming to the high school. Sarah Caney, Deputy Superintendent, was highlighted for all of her work as a principal mentor.

Tammy Myers, High School Principal, then began by demonstrating a few projects that the high school students have been working on based on The House on Mango Street. Students created a book that includes a biography about themselves as a way to express connection to the literature. Students read the text and analyzed opinions on the text (what do others say about it) as they would in a college setting. In order to get all of our students to this text analysis process quicker, ANet (our interim assessment provided) has adjusted the middle school curriculum.

Some beginning of year High School highlights include: we have surpassed enrollment (117 students) with an average attendance of 95%, we have begun many of the extracurricular activities students have asked for, and teacher coaching at the high school has been going extremely well with Sarah and Tammy. In a recent extracurricular survey completed by students, culinary and coding were the two most popular requests.

Tammy continued the update with information on differentiated instruction and how teachers present information in different ways to many of our students who learn best in different ways. A Trustee asked if differentiated learning happens across the population and Tammy responded that yes, our average teaching experience is about 5 years and they are very well equipped to assess how many students are following a lesson or not at any given time.

Two ninth graders joined the meeting to give more insight into their experience the last few months at the High School. The common themes were that: teachers push you to do and be better, teachers also choose good and interesting texts that relate to students (e.g. House on Mango Street), there are interesting projects where students create their own civilizations and rules, many students like basketball and are able to try out for the Life Sciences team, with the guiding principles of love, liberate and heal advisors makes sure all students participate and express their feelings and concerns. Students were asked questions from the Trustees including a question on future career aspirations, which once students replied he is interested in marketing and public speaking, and the other is interested in counseling and social work. When asked what advice you would give to middle school Scholars, they students replied to have them focus on things inside the classroom to keep grades up although there are always forces outside the classroom that may impede that.

Trustees Attending via Phone: David Wildermuth

Staff Attending: Avi Crawford, Jeff Ginsburg, Karen Harris, Robert Harvey, Nyasha Manigualt

I. Welcome and Introductions

Joan Solotar called the meeting to order and welcomed everyone to the meeting. A quorum of directors was present, and the meeting having been duly convened was ready to proceed.

II. Consent Agenda

Lili Lynton called for a motion to approve the consent agenda noting all of the items it contained. Saskia Levy Thompson seconded the motion and the motion passed unanimously.

III. Finance Update

Karen began by providing a budget update on the Scholars network. We are exceeding enrollment targets at all schools except at Scholars Elementary, but we are saving in salaries which makes up for that decrease in funds. We are currently over budget in curriculum and building maintenance which is being offset by projected $300,506 surplus.

Rob added that with enrollment budgeting for all schools, we budget for lower enrollment, with a hope to over-enroll. Jeff added that as we figure out our cost sharing, and with the SUNY renewal this year, we must make sure that the Schools show no deficit which is exactly how things are looking.

As we have saved on salaries across Scholars, Rob has had the budget to do some of the larger projects he is envisioning including the curriculum updates.

For the EHTP & Scholars shared services agreement, we want to change to a flat fee. Right now we are taking percentages of everyone's time and salary and it is the most complicated model SUNY has ever seen. Historically at Scholars we have been at about 9.8% of revenues. This is on the low end of what we tend to see with charter networks. SUNY has told us that the fee is usually 10-15%. We kept these numbers low in the early years because the schools couldn't afford it, but now that Scholars is in a better financial position, we are able to increase the flat fee. The Finance team will calculate numbers and run the scenarios to then take to the integration committee.

IV. East Harlem Scholars Academies Report

Rob began his update with changes to the structure of the Network Leadership Team. We need to do a better job of supporting our students with IEPs and have made a decision to scale out inclusive learning to the network level that includes an elementary and secondary role. We have also added a Deputy Superintendent of Early Learning role to support the full view of PK - 5th grade.

The Managing Director of EHTR, Susan Gonzowitz, will also report to Rob now. Our residents are very successful with their culture and teaching pedagogy and we will now make sure that is a part of the development of teachers at Scholars Academies. Residents currently only spend 12-14 hour a week in the Academies, but this change will allow them to participate in professional development with us and have families get to know them.

Desree Cabrall-Njenga (Des) will be transitioning from her role as the Principal of Scholars Elementary II and taking on the role of Deputy Superintendent, Early Learning as of July 1st. Her background in elementary education and knowledge of the network will allow her to be very successful.

Haley Hemwall is the Dean of Inclusive Learning at Scholars. The way we graduate scholars off of IEPs here is unlike anything in CSD4 because of her work. She will be the Network Director of Inclusive Learning for elementary students.

Anthony Grant will become Principal of Scholars Elementary II. He is the current Assistant Principal at Scholars Elementary II and was hired to be Des' successor. The families are very excited about this change.

Rob explained that the average length of a principal's tenure is about 3-5 years with a possibility of 7 years. When you add turnaround to that, it gets even smaller. KIPP does a 6 year bonus for principals because it is so hard to keep them after that fifth year.

Maureen Yusuf Morales (Mo), our founding principal here at Scholars Middle School, will be transitioning out of her role. After 9 years of founding work, she will be taking a professional rest. SMid will now be a full turnaround school. Currently at SMid we have been doing a soft reset around student culture. Teachers currently have PD after school Monday-Thursday. We have seen large growth across culture. We are now resetting a lot of the academic instruction. Our goal is now to align both of our Middle Schools with our partner ANet. We have a couple of internal candidates and we hope to have them partner with the AP and Mo the next couple of months to really have the change be strong.

We are a few days away from our renewal application being due to SUNY. The board meeting will be March 3rd and be 1.5 - 2 hours long. The on school site visits will be March 5th-6th and they will vote on June 11th. The options for renewal are 5 year, 3 year or no renewal. We can at max get a 3 year, as they want to align us with SII. SUNY may also be moving forward with only giving out 3 year renewals. We wanted an authorizer with the highest bar, so SUNY has been great partners and have given us great feedback. SUNY is really helpful in hearing your plan and thought process although schools may be struggling.

We are adding additional sections of Pre-K at each of our campuses. 54 students at JREC and 52 students at 2050. There was a 37% higher score for reading for students in kindergarten who were with us in Pre-K and there is major demand across the two sites. We started the year over enrolled, but families have since moved.

We are opening a second pathway across our residency for SpEd 3rd-5th grade. It's a 2-year program (28 months). Year 1 they will be Assistant Teachers and Year 2 they will be co-lead teachers. The Sisters of Harlem will be offering an entire brownstone for our Residents. $1200 for rent, utilities, wifi, laundry. We are removing the economic barrier for teachers of color to enter the field.

We are finally implementing curriculum across the elementary level (Wit & Wisdom, Eureka Math, PhD Science). The new curriculum is heavily text based. Scholars will be using text to respond to questions and learn to analyze text. If you can close the knowledge gap for students, they can achieve more.

III. Education & Accountability Update

Dr. Robert S. Harvey began the Scholars Academies update with information on how our digital learning has been going. Rob provided a few videos and examples of how students are interacting and learning in digital spaces.

Overall as a network during these last five week, we have averaged an 80% attendance rate. Our attendance is based on Scholars engaging in a class for at least 50% of the time during the day and having completed all independent work assignments by Thursday. All of our classes have a live stream component. While it is not every day, all Scholars will see their teacher live at some point during the week. As not all of the instruction is live, there is no typical day for Scholars. They have enough material to be engaged for about 5 hours a day, so we thought that was a good medium from a traditional 7-hour day. Teachers are in their huddles beginning at 8:30am and typically ending their day at about 4pm. Our teachers are working a full day as they have office hours, they are answering questions, responding to emails, grading, and live teaching. Our goal was continuity. We wanted to make sure they we are offering families as best as possible much of the social-emotional and teaching support they would receive if we were live.

We have been surveying Scholars about every other week to get feedback and so far, the schedule has been received well because there is a balance between live instruction and recorded so you can do a lot of independent work. The older grades like high school and upper middle school are mostly self-guided, so there are live components, but we are not expecting them to watch live video every day.

For FY21 enrollment, we made an intentional decision to keep our lottery on the original date scheduled, which was April 2nd. SUNY, our authorizer, did allow us to change our lottery and many of our colleagues and collaborating organizations did. Many moved their lotteries to May under the assumptions that everyone would be back in building to be able to do that traditional lottery, but seeing the state of COVID we decided to move forward with our original date. We had many recruiting efforts in the beginning of 2020 that have proven to be successful. At Scholars Academy we are already 100% enrolled in first, fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth, and tenth grades. We are pacing well in PK as that number is already up from when I collected this data yesterday, so we are constantly moving in the right direction of hitting our target. For Scholars II FY21 enrollment, while only two grades are at full enrollment, from first through sixth grades we are all at the 90% mark, which is outpacing where it has been in previous years at this time. Some of that is due to new enrollment, but a lot of it is due to the significant culture and teaching and learning work that has been done by Des Cabrall-Njenga, the outgoing Principal, and Anthony Grant, the current Assistant Principal who will be assuming the role of Principal. Their joint efforts at SII Elementary have really contributed to our families feeling supported and wanted to continue their journey with our organization, so we are excited about these enrollment numbers. The numbers we are actively working on is PK at SII and ninth grade at our high school. We are assuming that 86 of our current eighth graders will continue on with us for ninth grade. That is an aggressive number as there are many families, in the midst of the current state of the nation, who are relocating, moving back abroad or trying to navigate what they want their child's high school experience to look like. We are looking at another year where 20-30% of our ninth grade class comes from other schools and networks.

We have been approved for our additional sections of PK on each campus, so we will have 108 students in our PK program across the network. This is very exciting as our PK data has been very strong. When you look at our PK students who transition into our kindergarten, they are 37% more proficient in reading and math than students who did not attend our PK program. We are excited to continue to build that pipeline of students who are K ready because being K ready is a significant indicator for being on track for grade level by third grade. This is the foundation we need to move into 3K.

Saskia Levy Thompson asked how we are responding to the Mayor's cuts to education and PK specifically. Rob confirmed that East Harlem is currently not one of the locations considered in the scale back.

Susan Gonzowitz began her teaching residency update by announcing that we are pausing the general education pathway for FY21 and moving to only a special education, 2-year residency model. We have been evaluating whether or not a general education certification is worth continuing. The new special education cohort will serve in the academies as support teachers in our second through fifth grade classes, replacing the co-teaching model as planned. They will also run our out-of-school-time programming for both the academies and our district partner, Regardless of what financial streams come in, we know will be able to offer our student facing elementary services using our residents. This model of a special education lead teacher and special education teaching residents allows us to center the needs of our special education students in the hopes of transitioning them off of IEPs before they begin high school.

High level on PK virtual learning, our teachers have tried as best as possible to replicate that morning moment through fun, interactive, and thematic sing-a-longs and stories. We are focused on literacy support. When we are pushing screen time for students we make sure we focus that time on literacy. On the PK front, compared to other grades, teachers are having daily conversations with families and students. During a family town hall, families have emphasized their thankfulness for the communication, the over communication and the continuous support of Scholars without breaks. Even when we honored Spring Break for our own staff we uploaded a week's worth of content, so that families could continue instruction at home while our staff was recharging after four weeks of digital learning. Our grows have been centered on balancing the delivery of quality instruction, warm engagement and visual engagement. What the human body was able to do in person, now we have to pull it off on screen. Both of our elementary principals have done exceptionally well leading these spaces.

Lili asked a question as to how we are serving our students with IEPs. Rob assured that we have actually been meeting all of the mandates of IEPs with 1:1 sessions, small group intervention and really allowing all of our adults in the community to be focused on supporting Scholars with IEPs. During a traditional school day, while there might be 50 adults in a building, only about two thirds are actually doing academic instruction and sometimes only half of those adults are doing academic instruction. Now in digital learning, everyone is focused on the teaching and learning work. Scholars who traditionally would not have gotten a lot of small group or 1:1 instruction are now experiencing that mandate on their IEP being met with a high level of fidelity, as we have more human capacity to do that work. We are investing in a lot of digital software as we are using adults who are not traditionally academic. A chaotic, digital world is what pushed us into the space of meeting so many of our Scholars IEP mandates as it freed up human time and capacity.

Sarah Caney provided an update on our middle and high schools virtual learning. Our attendance at both middle schools and the high school trend between 86-95%. There is also consistent family council attendance and high response rates for progress reports. Our high school curriculum, reDesign, has modules designed for virtual learning and Professional Learning Communities (PLCs) meet virtually to maintain pacing guides. In our middle school, inclusive learning small group interventions happen twice a week and at our high school, there are office hours twice a week. As the regents exams are not happening this year, we have focused on grading on three categories: progressing, developing and not progressing.

IV. Finance Committee Update

Karen Harris began the Finance update with a FY2020 overview. Scholars Academies has projected a $389k surplus. We actually are going to have about $1M surplus. This is primarily because we have contained costs. Our expenses are down due to staffing vacancies that Rob purposefully did not fill as he reimagined the staffing model. The closing of our sites in mid-March have saved $250k. These savings allowed us to spend more than budgeted on curriculum.

There are two programs through the CARES Act that we have applied for: the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) and the Economic Injury and Disaster Loan (EIDL). The PPP loan will turn into a grant if the money is used properly, which is 75% for payroll and the rest on rent and utilities and you have to spend it before June 30th. We are applying due to the economic uncertainty resulting from likely State and Federal budget cuts to education and a further reduction of the per pupil rate. The applications are currently with the SBA. The EIDL loans are 30 years loans at approximately a 2.75% interest rate. In terms of our current debt position, we are at $0 for Scholars.

Given the current crisis and the budget of the state, our per pupil funding overview has changed. We had been given initial guidance of a 5.5% increase in per pupil funding. We are now expecting funding to be flat. We are assuming $16,112, which is slightly lower than what we got this year. We are also expecting facilities assistance to be flat which greatly affects the high school financing model and how much debt we can take on.

Lili asked about the financing of the Residency, which is fully supported by Scholars now.

For FY21 budgeting, we have cut a lot of non-personnel costs and we will be finalizing those changes in the next few weeks to present to the board in June.

We will not be providing any in-person sessions this summer, but we are working to figure out what our virtual program looks like. Jeff spoke about how appreciative he is of Rob, Mel and Susan and the approach we are taking on holding students back. In our three tiers: passing, progressing, not progressing. All of our progressing and not progressing students will have individualized plans as we go into our summer session.

Joan thanked the Board and the meeting was adjourned at 9:25am.
