New York State Education Department
Identity Verification and Authorization to Access or Disclose
Confidential Education Information Regarding Pre-School,
Elementary, Secondary, and Post-Secondary Education

Instructions

The purpose of this Identity Verification and Authorization is to establish the identity and authorization of an individual who seeks access to confidential education information, or who requests disclosure/release of such confidential education information. Such a request for access, disclosure or release most commonly will be submitted to the New York State Education Department (“Department”) through the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (“FERPA”), the New York State Freedom of Information Law (“FOIL”) or the New York State Personal Privacy Protection Law (“PPPL”), and the Education Law §2-d.

FERPA is a federal law that establishes the rights of students and parents with regard to access and disclosure of education records, and ensures privacy and confidentiality with respect to those records. Likewise, the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (“IDEA”) is a federal law governing educational services to children with disabilities, which also emphasizes rights of privacy and confidentiality with respect to many special education records (34 CFR §300.610). FOIL provides a presumption of public access to records held by State and local government entities, but provides protection from access to certain confidential information unless a person is specifically authorized to receive such information. Similarly, PPPL allows a person to request personal information that has been collected by an agency and pertains to that person (Public Officers Law §95). Education Law §2-d(g) also allows for parents to inspect and review specific educational records for their child and provides that safeguards associated with industry standards and best practices must be used while storing or transferring such records.

This form is provided as a means for eligible students, parents, guardians and other persons in a parental relationship to establish their identity and relation to the subject of the confidential records and to give the Department permission to release or disclose educational records. An “eligible student” is an individual seeking educational information about him/herself who has reached 18 years of age or attends a postsecondary institution (34 CFR §99.3), or, if the student is currently receiving special education services, is over the age of 18 and the parent/guardian’s rights under IDEA have been transferred to the student. FERPA requires the Department to use “reasonable methods to identify and authenticate” the identity of those seeking “personally identifiable information from education records” (34 CFR §99.31[c]). FOIL and PPPL also require a person who seeks access to confidential records pertaining to him/herself to present reasonable proof of identity or consents in writing to the disclosure of such record (Public Officers Law §89[2][c]).

Pursuant to your inquiry about, or request to disclose, protected education records, you are being asked to provide the following information to the Department to confirm your identity and establish your eligibility to receive or direct disclosure of such records. This form must be completed and notarized in order for the Department to comply with any request or inquiry for the disclosure of protected educational record(s), information or data.
