

Department-Approved Pathway Assessments in World Languages

(Updated November 5, 2025)

Students who are otherwise eligible to receive a high school diploma in June 2015 and thereafter must take and pass four required Regents Exams or Department-approved alternative assessments (one in each of the following subjects: English, math, science, and social studies) and either pass a comparably rigorous assessment for a fifth required exam, or in lieu of a fifth exam, complete the requirements to earn the CDOS Commencement Credential. Students may meet the fifth assessment required for graduation by passing a Department-Approved Pathway Assessment in World Languages. At their July 2021 meeting, the NYS Board of Regents voted to change the name of “Languages Other than English” learning standards and related items to “World Languages”.

The following assessments and cut score requirements have been approved for use as Department-Approved Pathway Assessments in World Languages. If you notice that any assessment cut scores or versions have been updated since the posting of this document, please email emscgradreq@nysed.gov.

American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) Assessment of Performance toward Proficiency in Languages (AAPPL) – American Sign Language, Arabic, Chinese, Japanese, Korean, and Russian For more information, contact Jennifer Carson: jcarson@language-testing.com	Language Testing International (LTI) is the exclusive licensee of the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Language’s (ACTFL) assessments. The ACTFL Assessment of Performance toward Proficiency in Languages is an accurate standards-based assessment of students’ ability to communicate in a language. According to the NY State Learning Standards for World Languages, communication is the over-arching goal of instruction. ACTFL defines communication in terms of three modes: Interpersonal, Interpretive, and Presentational. The AAPPL is an ACTFL-developed assessment based on the ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines and designed precisely to test the three ACTFL communication modes across four domains: Interpersonal Speaking and Listening, Interpretive Reading, Interpretive Listening, and Presentational Writing. It assesses tasks across the three modes of communication as defined by the World-Readiness Standards for Learning Languages, which are cited by NYSED on its standards and guidelines page, stating that “the World-Readiness Standards for Learning Languages create a roadmap to guide learners to develop competence to communicate effectively and interact with cultural competence to participate in multilingual communities at home and around the world.” AAPPL results are reported according to ACTFL performance descriptors for each mode, making the alignment of the AAPPL with communication as the over-arching goal of instruction clear. National Examinations in World Languages (NEWL) - Arabic, Korean, Portuguese, and Russian (American Councils for International Education) For more information, contact Huma M. Shamsi: hmsamsi@americancouncils.org	The National Examinations in World Languages (NEWL) were developed by the American Councils for International Education. The NEWL assesses functional proficiency in the interpersonal, interpretive, and presentational modes of communication. The four sections of NEWL are reading comprehension, listening comprehension, integrated writing, and integrated speaking. Reading Comprehension consists of a series of short, culturally, and linguistically authentic texts followed by one to three multiple-choice questions in English. Listening Comprehension consists of similar material to the reading section but requires examinees to listen to brief audio scenarios: dialogs, newscasts, radio shows, and other audio media. Integrated Writing consists of audio and written prompts that elicit the ability to respond in writing. For example, the writing tasks may require examinees to type notes to friends, write letters or emails, or present opinions on topics, all in the target language. Integrated Speaking consists of audio and written prompts that require a spoken response. Examinees use their headsets with microphones to record their spoken responses via a recorder embedded in the testing browser window.
